Happy Catholic Schools Week, Falcons! For 48 years now, Catholic schools has used this time to highlight what is so great about the experience of Catholic education. You are probably also aware that for the last 70 years, St. Joseph Catholic School has provided our students with an experience in education that is faith-based, academically rigorous, and service-oriented. Being recognized as the best in private education is a blessing for us. What makes our Catholic school so great? I believe it is due to amazing stakeholders like our parents who support the work of the school through volunteer efforts and fundraising. I believe we also have amazing students. Not only have our students been recognized as students of the year for the Diocese and for the region, they are actively involved in our church and our community. I also do not want to forget about our incredible and caring faculty. The love they have for their students can be tough as it is caring.

It is also a blessing to be the biggest ministry of St. Joseph Catholic Church. If you went to Mass here this weekend, he invited the families to come to open house on Wednesday. He also reminded our families that the parish supports the school by providing assistance through the Msgr. Clayton Scholarship Fund. We are blessed to have such support from our parish. Again, I wish you all a very happy Catholic Schools Week and many blessings. St. Joseph, pray for us.
