Summarizing Your Book

When you tell someone about your day, you include the important people, places, and events but leave out the little details. Similarly, a summary of a story is a brief retelling. It includes only the main characters, setting, conflict, and important events. When reading a story, you might have personal opinions, or feelings, about it. You might also make judgments about the story-whether it's believable, well-written, and so on. Although it's fine to have opinions and make judgments; don't include them in a summary. A summary is supposed to be objective, or tell only the facts.

Directions: Complete the graphic organizer after you read your book. If you are familiar with the five stages of plot, you can use them; or you can use the beginning, middle, and end column to guide your work.

| | Plot | Notes |
|------------------|---|-------|
| Beginning | Exposition <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Introduces the setting and the characters • Sets up or hints at the conflict (problem) | |
| Middle | Rising Action <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Shows how the conflict becomes more difficult • Builds suspense | |
| | Climax <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Is the most exciting part and a turning point | |
| | Falling Action <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Eases the tension • Shows how the main character resolves the conflict | |
| End | Resolution <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Reveals how everything turns out • Sometimes ends with a surprise twist | |

Main Character

What makes the characters in a story seem real? It's all in the details. Authors can describe the characters' attitudes, or how they think, act, and feel. They can also describe the characters' motivations, or the reasons for their actions. Often, a character's attitude and motivation changes during a story. As the story unfolds, readers learn more about a character based on how that person responds to events.

Directions: Complete the graphic organizer as you read to show how your character changes throughout the book.
